Plan India

Plan is a child-centred, non-governmental organisation working to improve the lives of vulnerable children in India. A committed advocate of child rights, Plan India works in 13 states and has directly impacted the lives of over a million children and their families since 1979.

Plan Vision

Plan's vision is of a world in which all children realise their full potential in societies which respect people's rights and dignities.

Plan Mission

Plan strives to bring lasting improvements in the quality of life of deprived children in developing countries through a process that unites people across cultures and adds meaning and value to their lives by:

- Enabling deprived children, their families and communities to meet their basic needs and to increase their ability to participate in and benefit from their societies.
- Building relationships to increase understanding and unity among people of different cultures and countries.
- Promoting the rights and interests of the world's children.

Editorial

It is a great pleasure for us to share with you Plan's Annual Report for 2007-2008. During this year, Plan has been steadily reaching out to a number of children, their families and communities, empowering them with the skills and resources to improve their lives. We have continued to strengthen our approach to child-centred community development. Building and strengthening partnerships with other agencies and corporations has steadily increased our capacity to help children who are especially vulnerable, to realise their potential.

The last year saw a nationwide program review to assess how well our strategy matches with the rapidly changing situation in India. We talked to children, partners and communities across the country to see how our work reflects and helps in changing their lives in reality. The exercise was conducted by 12 teams with over 80 people – both from Plan and our partner organisations. The review showed us that there is a lot to be proud of. However, we should focus more on vulnerable children to ensure that they enjoy equal opportunities to realise their rights.

As a result, Plan now has a new Program Framework in place. It will help focus our contributions towards the overall goals that all children in India have:

- Right to protection from abuse, discrimination and exclusion
- Right to attain and maintain optimal health
- Right to quality education
- Right to participate in their communities
- Right to a healthy environment
- Right to protect themselves from the effects of natural disasters
- Right to economic security in their households in order to ensure their healthy development and future.

This annual report reflects our work in these seven areas. In each section we present a taste of our program highlights and particular partnerships that have helped us strengthen our work. We reached out to greater number of children in difficult circumstances. We facilitated children's efforts to express and share their opinion and proposals with decision-makers at all levels. We focused on increasing access to education. We helped in reducing the stigma associated with HIV/AIDS. We supported the establishment of vigilance committees to counter child-trafficking. We nearly finished 872 houses for Tsunami victims. We successfully concluded our long-term interventions in Madkasira (Andhra Pradesh) and H. D. Kote (Karnataka). We shaped up new operations in Varanasi (Uttar Pradesh) and Patna (Bihar).

We are particularly proud to report that the Plan HIV/AIDS Awareness Project received the Manthan Award. The production of the kit with learning material for school-age children was qualified as the "Best E-education Content" for the year 2007.

We also worked hard to diversify our funding base. We can count on the continued support from our international child-sponsors and a number of bilateral development agencies. Additionally and encouragingly, many corporate houses came forward to support our work thereby enabling us to expand and grow. We also received funding from the Global Fund to continue working with children affected by HIV/AIDS. Through an intensified marketing initiative many more individuals are becoming convinced by our work. Our family of individual Indian donors has grown to over 6,000.

We invite you to celebrate with us another year of progress and great collaboration. Success is due to dedicated team-work and creative relationships with our Indian partner organisations. Thus, we would like to thank all development organisations and corporations, the increasing number of individuals and all of you who support us in our journey to help children in India to realise their potential. We hope you will continue to be part of it!

The Year That Was

Plan India's core programs take a rights-based approach in which children, families and communities are active and leading participants in their own development – what we call 'child-centred community development'. A key element of Plan's approach is to strengthen partnerships that ensure effective delivery systems for basic needs and to safeguard the rights of children and communities in the areas we work on, in different parts of India. Projects to improve the health of families and communities ensure that children grow up in an environment that prioritises health. Our water and sanitation projects ensure that children grow up in a hygienic and clean environment and are not vulnerable to diseases. Improving the quality of schools, training teachers and developing innovative teaching aids paves the way for children to enjoy learning and stay at school. Every time Plan supports its communities with livelihood opportunities and empowers them to govern themselves, it has an impact on children's needs. In the ultimate analysis, it is always the children who are the final beneficiaries of Plan programs.

A child's journey with Plan begins as Plan and its partners go to work with parents and communities in their area to ensure child rights and community development. With newborns, Plan works to ensure the child's legal identity and optimal health. Working with communities, we support a hygienic, nurturing environment for the child's growth and watch over his first steps. The child and family are given ample opportunities to break out of their cycle of poverty and grow as capable citizens. Should the child falter, be misled or be shaken by unforeseen circumstances, Plan and its partners extend their sheltering umbrella to guide the child to live a life of dignity.

Every Child Deserves Protection

Children have the right to be protected from all forms of physical or mental violence, injury, abuse (including sexual abuse), neglect and exploitation. Yet, an untold number of girls are killed before being born, and millions of children live in particularly difficult and vulnerable circumstances. Street children, child labourers, children with disabilities, trafficked children, homeless children, children affected by HIV/AIDS, and children affected by disasters – all are in dire need of protection. Plan has been responding to their hardships by campaigning for elimination of female foeticide, promoting Universal Birth Registration, and involving communities to serve as guardians against trafficking.

Eliminating Female Foeticide and Promoting Birth Registration

At its most basic, the right to protection imparts to a child, the right to be born. The Indian society's bias for male children and its subsequent ramification in the form of female foeticide is a blatant denial of girl's right to protection. To discourage the practice and ensure that girls too have the right to live, Plan India initiated the 'KOPAL' project in 2005. Since then, KOPAL has facilitated a network of organisations across the four northern states of India viz. Uttarakhand, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar and Jharkhand to work on female foeticide. As members of the Government initiated 'Pre-conception and Prenatal Diagnostic Technique' (PCPNDT) Committees, Plan partners ensure that district level activities are aligned to addressing female foeticide. By linking birth registration awareness with female foeticide, Plan has successfully reached out to nearly the entire population in 49 districts in the states.

“Atmajaa” A Cry to Save the Girl Child

On 28th April 2008, the Health Minister, Dr. Anbumani Ramadoss, launched "Atmajaa", a serial on female foeticide and the PCPNDT Act supported by Plan India. Based on the rampant killing of girl child in the womb, the TV serial seeks to raise awareness of the issue. The 13 episode serial will be telecast on National Doordarshan's channel.

Every Child Deserves Protection

Universal Birth Registration

Count every child, because every child counts

Every child has the right to be counted. Governments across the world accept a child's right to be counted and grant him or her citizenship at birth. But without a birth certificate the child has neither an identity nor access to the various government facilities that aid his or her development. Annually, 9.5 million Indian children never access facilities designed for them because their births are never registered. This means that annually, millions of children including the children born in the previous years who were not registered are denied their rights to education, health and much more.

Plan India has expended significant time and resources in addressing this anomaly. Its Universal Birth Registration campaign launched in May 2006 in the five states of Andhra Pradesh, Delhi, Karnataka, Mumbai and Rajasthan, has involved 52 grassroots level NGOs across five states to achieve 100% registration by 2010. About 90,000 posters (in local languages), 1,300 instances of wall writing and 1,200 street play performances have been carried out over and above the community meetings, workshops for stakeholders and registration camps. Specially produced and narrowcast community radio programs have raised awareness levels and successfully created a demand for birth registration. It is a testimony to the campaign's effectiveness that it has received strong support from the state governments especially in Rajasthan and has successfully involved children in generating awareness.

Roopa's gift to her baby brother

On 14th Nov 2007, the block Coordinator of Vishwabharathi (Karnataka UBR Project) visited the Government Lower Primary School to raise awareness of UBR. Sitting amongst his audience was Roopa, a young student of class II. Along with other children, Roopa listened carefully to the program tapes and the subsequent explanation of the importance and benefits of birth registration certificate. She also learnt that the certificate could be obtained for just two rupees. Half an hour after the program, Roopa approached the Coordinator and gave him two rupees. When asked why she was giving the money, she responded that she wanted a birth certificate made for her newborn baby brother. Roopa's initiative and the support of the local authorities gave Roopa's brother his first gift of legal identity.

Children teach us time and again that age can never be a barrier to participation. Children's participation in promoting birth registration not only builds their capacity to influence their own welfare and development, but can also be used to overcome divisions by acting as a unifying principle among different stakeholders. Children's activities also influence the behaviour of their communities.

Every Child Deserves Protection

Eliminating Trafficking in Children

While laws against child trafficking help punish the guilty, prevention of trafficking is the best way of reducing its incidence. In Andhra Pradesh, Plan's Child Trafficking and HIV/AIDS Prevention Project with 21 partners has involved 300 Panchayats across 10 districts with high prevalence of trafficking, in establishing more than 450 vigilance committees to guard against child trafficking. The project is benefiting nearly 300 communities and nearly 220 victims of sexual exploitation are being provided counselling support and home based orientation to help their rehabilitation. Plan is also supporting 120 families in establishing market linkages to enhance their income opportunities.

Bringing Hope to Child Labourers at Railway Platforms

With 40 million child labourers, India has one of the largest population of street and working children. Widespread poverty and its consequence have led to an increasing number of children running away from their homes and arriving at railway platforms of big cities where they are vulnerable to abuse and destitution. To support these children, Plan and its partner Chetna in New Delhi have been working at railway platforms between Gwalior and Delhi implementing the "Dreams on Wheels" project. Repatriation (where possible), mainstreaming and awareness of child rights are helping these children find a life of dignity.

Plan and its partner Chetna in Delhi, have been focusing on building children's leadership skills to enable them to protect themselves and others like them. Small duration 'contact point' and long duration 'residential workshops' use role plays, group exercises, games, puppets etc. to help children express their feelings, understand their circumstances and seek suitable solutions. "Badthe Kadam", a federation of street and working children initiated by Chetna has involved children in promoting their rights and creating awareness. Nearly 600 children have been trained through the contact point and residential workshops, and 24 children are actively involved in the project as peer educators and child rights promoters.

The workshops have been critical in helping children understand their circumstances and responsibilities. They generate amongst children a feeling of security.

"The workshops give us a chance to become united and we feel protected here."
- Chetna workshop participants' comments

When Dreams Come True on the Cricket Field

It was a chance in a million for the beneficiaries of the Dreams on Wheels project. A group of street children imbibed cricketing tips from ICL's star players Nathan Astle, Shane Bond, Maravan Attapattu and Michel Kasprovicz. The event was a "cricket clinic" specially organised by Dabur Glucose in aid of Plan supported street children. It was an enthralling experience that had the children in raptures as they realised their dreams of meeting their favourite cricketers!

Promoting Health and Preventing HIV/AIDS

The right to optimal health is a key area addressed by Plan in all its interventions. Over the years, Plan and its partners have been playing a critical role in strengthening health services to make it available for the vulnerable sections of the society, especially women and children. Plan's health services in communities include non-institutional services like awareness building, education and nutrition. With focus on primary health care and prevention, Plan partners encourage community participation in health interventions and seek inter-sectoral coordination through grassroots level workers. An interlinked and unified approach to delivery of health services has strengthened the capabilities of grassroots workers and resulted in strong community health action plans.

Preventing HIV/AIDS in Children

The spectre of HIV/AIDS destroys the very fabric of children's lives creating circumstances they are unable to comprehend or surmount. It is estimated that 170,000 children below the age of 15 years are infected with HIV/AIDS in India and 57,000 children infected every year through mother to child transmission.

Plan India's HIV/AIDS interventions focus on prevention, care and support, community capacity building, social reintegration and rehabilitation, advocacy and lobbying to safeguard children's rights.

In Andhra Pradesh, Plan has involved 300 Panchayats across 10 districts covering 300 communities in addressing HIV/AIDS related areas of nutrition, health, education, testing, psycho-social counselling, vocational training and skill development. Nearly 2500 People Living with HIV (PLHIV) are supported to get enhanced availability and accessibility to medical and nutrition support, and counselling services. Over 3000 men, women and children are accessing medical and nutrition support, counselling services and foster care support. 180 Children Affected with AIDS (CAA) are benefiting through childcare centres.

In Andhra Pradesh, 1700 trained bare foot counsellors are providing basic and advanced counselling skills to PLHIV and the communities. Over 1000 trained paramedical staff is providing medical services to the PLHIV at their door steps.

Plan Receives Manthan Award

Plan's HIV/AIDS Awareness Package (HAAP, 2007) won the Manthan award for best e-education content for the year 2007. Awarded by Digital Empowerment Education, the award recognises Plan's initiatives in the field of HIV/AIDS awareness. The HAAP project integrated awareness with education in a child friendly manner through a HAAP kit developed by children.

Promoting Health and Preventing HIV/AIDS

Disassociating Stigma and HIV/AIDS

In Andhra Pradesh and Maharashtra, Plan and its partners are implementing the Global Fund supported CHAHA project (Chaha means wish in Hindi). By using information to spread awareness in the communities and by encouraging acceptance of affected people, we are reducing the stigma and discrimination associated with HIV/AIDS. Nearly 2000 children have been identified and 700 registered under the project. Seven child support groups with 72 child members are providing essential support to children in understanding and adopting healthy HIV/AIDS behaviour.

HIV/AIDS counselling of parents, families, neighbours and communities is critical for realising acceptance of positive people in societies. Regular and repeated follow up by project staff boosts acceptance and understanding.

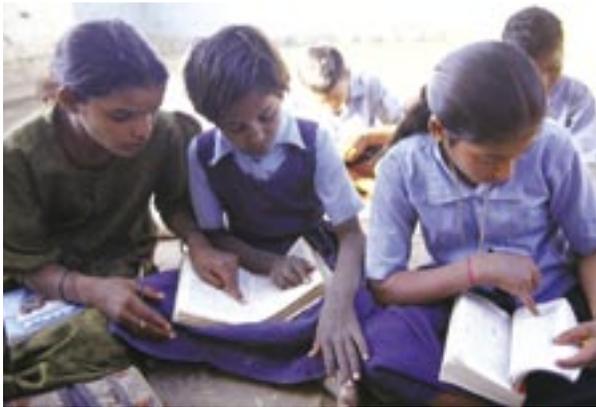

“When a PHC doctor failed to attend the Gram Sabha meeting, he was not allowed to sign in the register by the community.”

- Self Help Group member, Rajasthan. The statement corroborates the fact that community empowerment is the only answer to make government's programs and systems responsive.

Anita, a nine year old child, was being completely neglected by her uncle who was also her guardian. Denied Anti Retroviral Therapy, Anita's health had suffered. Repeated counselling of the guardian yielded little result except his decision to take her to their village. However, at the village Anita faced discrimination and ostracism. Subsequently, efforts were made to counsel the family members, neighbours and other villagers. The efforts yielded results and Anita is now regular for her treatment and is leading an improved life.

“Plan, with its partner organisations, has developed the much needed community health intervention for meeting the challenges related to health of the most vulnerable population. In keeping with the specific needs of each location, the relevance for the health program is well established. Besides improving the service delivery in the health sector, the health program also believes in the potential of such a strategy in which the poor themselves become active agents of their program.”

Realising Quality

Education

In a world of scarcity, education is the bridge that can help children break free from the cycle of poverty. Yet an estimated 69 million Indian children remain out of school and deprived of education. Plan works to strengthen this bridge within the larger framework of the Indian Government's vision of 'Education for All Children'.

Using a framework called the School Improvement Program (SIP), Plan collaborates with the government to impact the Early Childhood Care and Development (ECCD) centres and schools in its areas in a positive way. By focusing on key elements like access to quality education, nurturing environment, teachers' training and innovative teaching material, Plan guided centres have improved enrolment. Community and parental involvement in the management of the schools and centres helped to ensure that teachers attend school regularly and government budget is available for school maintenance.

Networking for Greater Outreach: Early Childhood Care and Development

Appropriate and adequate early childhood care is a vital foundation for a child's development. It paves the way for healthy growth and learning and is a significant tool to contain child mortality and morbidity.

Plan's support to "Early Childhood Care and Development" (ECCD) in Samskar – Plan in Andhra Pradesh, has gone from strength to strength since its inception in 1997. 85 pre-schools initiated by Samskar are now part of the government's Integrated Child Development Services (ICDS) program and are providing quality early care and stimulation to children. During 2007, Plan extended support services to all the pre-schools of Nizamabad district at the request of the ICDS program functionaries. Training of Trainer workshops for Child Development Project Officers (CDPOs) and Supervisors of ICDS have resulted in scaling up of ECCD services across the district and have strengthened the government-NGO partnership. Awareness sessions for caregivers in 30 communities have enhanced care for pregnant women and children, improved home based care and enhanced gender equity.

Realising Quality Education in Rural Schools

Plan has been engaged in developing 170 model schools in the states of Andhra Pradesh, Rajasthan and Uttarakhand. Under this model, each school is developing its own unique 'School Improvement Plan' and will work with teachers, parents and children in achieving the goals it sets out for itself. The project is demonstrating the possibility of positive, fear free, child friendly government schools with good learning levels in rural areas.

Developing Literacy and Increased Fluency in Urban Schools

In Delhi, Plan's "Early Literacy Project" (ELP) is encouraging literacy skills and increased fluency

amongst children attending the government's Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) schools. The project's success has drawn a special commendation from the MCD for ELP's ability to increase children's confidence and improve reading and writing skills in an environment that is child friendly. The ELP approach has been documented in a movie titled 'Man Karta Hai' (in English and Hindi versions) and was shared with 2000 schools of Delhi.

Accelerated English Learning for First Generation Learners

In Rajasthan, the Plan supported "Accelerated English Learning" project reached out to 1500 first generation learners to teach them the basics of English vocabulary. Working in close alliance with school authorities, Plan partners incorporated approximately 150 hours of contact programs into the school schedule with great success. The module was validated by the Central Institute of Foreign Language and has been adopted as an effective approach to reach out to thousands of tribal children in the state.

"Spare the Rod" – Children Speak Against Corporal Punishment

1500 children from Plan communities participated in transforming a research study on corporal punishment into a comic book. The study had mapped children's voices on violence which the children transmuted into a comic to raise awareness. A child-friendly version of the study findings was released on the occasion of Children's Day.

One for All, All for One, All of Us for Education

In Chikkadpally, when parents refused to send a boy to school because 'he kept asking for shoes, books and other expensive things', the children's club swung into action and assessed the village's expenditure on other items like alcohol, pan masala, movies and other entertainment options. The findings shocked not only the press which published them, but also the villagers. Children's research revealed that the village of 1039 people (including children), was spending a whopping Rs. 3,242,000/- on entertainment while the expenditure on education was a mere Rs. 1,50,000/- in the entire year. Not surprising, the adults of Chikkadpally vowed to never again oppose a child's education.

Realising Quality Education

School-on-Wheels

Educating street children and imparting to them literacy skills is a huge challenge given their mobile nature. Yet, educating them is important given their high vulnerability. Plan's innovative School on Wheels project with Doorsteps School in Mumbai is addressing this need by imparting education to street children through a mobile school. The mobile school functions from a bus that halts at different locations and conducts study classes and non formal education classes at a time and place convenient to children. Children learn language and mathematical skills through specially designed activities and participate in awareness sessions on issues relevant to them.

The initiative has been highly successful and the year saw:

- 900 children studying in the Schools on Wheels
- 173 street children (71 girls and 102 boys) gain admission to municipal schools
- 3 boys initiate their own small business of repairing plastic items
- 2 find vocation as apprentice mechanics in garage.

The novelty of a 'School on Wheels' is a major factor in enticing children to attend and has gone a long way in making the program interesting to children.

"Before becoming a member of the children's club I did not know how to tackle issues confronting us. Now I am aware of children's issues. I have refined my talents at the club and have gained confidence in addressing them with the support of adults and other members. When I joined the club my parents thought that I was wasting my time. They discouraged me. I convinced them and started attending meetings. Now, looking at my achievements, my parents are happy at my involvement in the club."

- Naresh, Children's Club Member

Child Participation

Realising Child Rights

Plan believes that children's Right to Participation is necessary not just for their benefit but for the benefit of the communities in which the children live. Child participation helps build citizenship and democracy, builds capacity, develops leadership and empowers and develops children's potential by involving them in development activity. To ensure that children's voices are not lost in the multitude and their needs and opinions are given due cognizance, Plan supports children in expressing their views, undertaking research to substantiate their beliefs and promoting causes relevant to them. Plan also actively invites children's feedback to its programs thus ensuring that the programs are aligned to children's needs.

Children Coming Together for a Cause

The Children's Advisory Board (CAB) is a unique platform that allows children from across the society to participate in development initiatives. The year saw CAB focus on the theme "Child Labour and Education" and take steps to raise awareness about the issue amongst peers and media. CAB published its first newsletter, "Our World - Making Present Better", which reiterated the importance of education and promoted an exploitation-free world for children.

and drawing by young children from across the world. Children from 85 countries sent in 1500 entries as part of the 2007 exhibition that was themed "Be Seen, Be Heard: Youth Participation in Development."

The New Delhi exhibition was inaugurated by renowned photographer and Padamshree Awardee Raghu Rai. It had been preceded by a photography workshop in which nearly 80 children from Plan projects and donors' children participated. The workshop trained participants on use of a digital camera and provided clues for picture themes. The children clicked pictures in Central Delhi and the best pictures were exhibited.

Census Survey by Children on Child Labour

In CASP- Plan Delhi, members of the children's Parliament undertook a survey of child labourers in their area. The process involved children in acquiring skills necessary to conduct a survey, analysing the results and subsequently designing interventions for the child labourers. Thereafter, the members have conceived the "Dhaba Kids Project" through which they intend to impart literacy skills and information to child labourers.

“Child’s Eye”: Film Festival of Documentary Films made by Children

Renowned film star Jackie Shroff and acclaimed movie directors Govind Nihalani and Nagesh Kukunoor stood by for Plan children and the four day Children’s Film Festival organised by Plan in Pune. The festival showcased documentaries made by children in Plan communities on issues affecting them. Peppered with film screenings and panel discussions, the festival was an acknowledgement of children’s ability to participate in the development process. It took forward an initiative begun in 2004, when the first film festival of children’s documentaries had been held. Since then, the documentaries have been screened across the country at different forums and have captured people’s interest in development work.

The event was sponsored by the Kirloskar group and Bharat Forge. Media support was extended by Indian Express.

21-year-old Sudhir Kumar from Delhi, who started off making his first film on tobacco addiction and since then has gone on to make some five films. “It was based on the lives of my close friends, so in that respect it was a true story. In fact, the film motivated two of my friends to give up their wayward ways and get back to education. Personally I became a lot more serious about life, it helped me focus better.”

21-year-old Poonam Mapare feels that her skill at handling the camera has helped her deal with situations better. “Today I do a lot of co-ordination for other projects of the organisation. I think apart from the technical skills; I learnt how to manage the resources available to me. In fact, the way I am speaking to you right now is the result of field work and encouragement we got from the organisation. We learnt to express ourselves better.”

Healthy Environment

Nurtures Life

Safe and reliable water supply and sanitation services are vital for people's health. These services are especially important in ensuring the healthy development of children. In India, some 40 million children are taken ill every year, sometimes fatally, by water and sanitation related diseases. Plan involves children and community members in improving their environmental spaces through projects that focus on hygiene, cleanliness, awareness and sustainability.

Child Advocates: Leading the Way to a Healthy Environment

Post Tsunami, the children's club members in Nagapattinam led the way to improved environment in their communities. Children prepared IEC material to promote health and hygiene and create demand for sanitation. The IEC material developed included posters on 7 key hygiene themes, a hygiene promoter manual, and guide books on low cost sanitation, Ecosan and water quality.

WES-Net India

Plan India continued to play an active role in the Water and Environmental Sanitation Network India (WES-Net India). WES-Net is a learning alliance of stakeholders in the Water and Environmental Sanitation sector, including NGOs, UN agencies, private sector, consultants, government departments and donors. WES-Net's objectives are to improve knowledge sharing and coordination within the water and sanitation sector – focused on achieving Millennium Development Goals. Sector coordination, electronic discussion, research coordination, database of publications, website, bringing out a newsletter, and coordination workshops/seminars are some of the key activities of the network. WES-Net is represented by over 1400 members across the country and has supported millions of children and families.

Recognising the value of IEC materials, the Department of Drinking Water, Government of India has advised Plan to submit a proposal to scale-up the distribution of materials to all the state Government departments. With the assistance of the Government, it is expected that the materials will be printed in 12 regional languages and distributed to all the state departments to help promote total sanitation across the country.

Healthy Environment Nurtures Life

SCOTS – Pilot Project

In ASM- Plan Andhra Pradesh, Plan's pilot project in Dubba Thanda, a small, remote and backward tribal hamlet has benefited 40 families of the hamlet and provided them with individual toilets, washing platform, soak pit, kitchen garden, and compost/garbage pits. The children are the real agents of change. The launch of the project was accompanied by group meetings with children on the importance of hygiene.

Subsequently, children actively engaged their families and community and created a demand for sanitation and better hygiene practices. They also monitored the project implementation and encouraged community members to use the facilities, thereby keeping the village environment clean. Issues of waste water disposal and solid waste disposal were addressed effectively enabling most households to utilise waste water to grow vegetables in their backyard. The overall quality of life has improved tremendously as a result of this intervention.

"The neighbouring communities which often pass through our village are amazed to see such a clean village in the locality and we are proud of this great achievement".

Master Chitibabu, Children's Club Secretary, Dubba Thanda, Andhra Pradesh

Disaster Preparedness

Rebuilding Lives

Natural disasters force upon children unnatural circumstances that threaten their peace and existence. Millions of Indian children are affected every year by natural disasters like floods, earthquakes, cyclones and cloud bursts. Preparing children and communities to protect themselves from the effects of disasters is a key facet of Plan India's emergency work.

During 2007, Plan undertook extensive relief and rehabilitation work in the flood affected areas of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh and the earthquake affected areas of Jammu and Kashmir. Plan responded with emergency supplies, medical aid, temporary shelters and counselling services to help the affected. Education programs were reintroduced in earnest to offer children a return to normalcy as quickly as possible.

Child-led Social Equity Audit in Jammu and Kashmir

Giving children adequate opportunities for participation and training them to be capable participants is a key guiding principle for Plan. "Child led Social Equity Audit" under the ambit of "Pictures for Life" is one such exercise through which Plan has been inviting and encouraging children's participation in auditing developmental work. The first audit was piloted in Tsunami affected areas when Plan trained children in the art of photography. Armed with cameras, children took pictures that captured the progress of development work in their communities and shared their findings with Plan. The exercise proved a huge success with children as it involved them in development work while imparting to them new skills that built their confidence.

In May 2007, Plan provided children in Baramula district of Kashmir a similar opportunity and involved them in assessing the social equity vis-à-vis services being provided by Plan and partners. The success of the process in building harmony, equity and imparting rational skills was proved once again as children carried out and completed a survey of the various services being provided by Plan. The process developed children's skills in social mapping, defining vulnerability, photography, conducting survey and analysing the initial results. Importantly, they learned the value of harmony and the rationale for social equity.

Healing the Cracks in Jammu and Kashmir

Following the 2005 earthquake in Kashmir and post the emergency relief operation, Plan had continued to play an important role in rehabilitating children and families affected by the earthquake. We have supported families rebuild their houses by providing them with design prototype, housing materials, tools and training for construction. 250 interim shelters have provided relief to more than 2000 people whose houses were destroyed.

Re-awakening the joy of learning, Plan-initiated Umang schools (schools without walls) have helped more than 25,000 children come to terms with the disaster and restored their confidence. More than 1500 teachers across nearly 400 schools are providing children with quality education in a nurturing environment. To ensure that children are always protected, Plan has trained nearly 200 teachers in psycho-social care, innovative interactive teaching and learning methodologies and joyful ways of environmental education. The teachers have also been trained to act safely in an earthquake situation to reduce the risks in future under disaster conditions. Further, 7 damaged schools were reconstructed with structural improvement benefiting 1,000 students and 45 teachers.

Disaster Preparedness

Rebuilding Lives

Preventing Epidemics in Bihar and Uttar Pradesh

In Bihar, floods affected nearly all Adithi-Plan communities in five of the seven sectors where we work. Adithi responded with alacrity and shifted affected families to temporary shelters. Life jackets, dry ration, health camps and relief supplies provided much needed succour to the affected. More than 2500 people were treated for medical ailments and chlorine tablets were distributed for safe drinking water. Community radio program on health and sanitation were narrowcast to ensure adherence to vital epidemic prevention measures. Children's groups turned leaders as they put up street plays and actively participated in the community programs thereby reducing distress levels and becoming active participants in development.

In Maharajanj in Uttar Pradesh, continuous rains submerged entire GNK-Plan communities. Roads were blocked and transport came to a standstill as flood waters reached the national highway. Plan partners worked round the clock distributing food packets, emergency supplies and organising medical check ups. Chlorination of all bore wells and water points, and fogging to prevent mosquito\insect infestations was undertaken. Access to government schemes and provisions was made possible by continually collaborating with government officials. Health volunteers made home visits to reiterate key messages on health and hygiene and explain the importance of using chlorine tablets, carbolic acids, follow-up of medicines and so forth. To restore a sense of normalcy, community instructors reinitiated non-formal education at the earliest and encouraged children to join school. Livelihood volunteers initiated efforts with the community and self-help groups to mitigate livelihood losses.

Unmitigated floods and rain in Bihar displaced families and washed away the year's hard labour, destroying food crops and sources of livelihood. Plan India rescued 162 families and narrowcast radio programs to safeguard people. To guard against instances of children being put to work, child marriages for girls and trafficking, Plan volunteers scaled up communication efforts to ensure that children's rights are not violated and they are allowed an opportunity to resume normal life.

Disaster Preparedness

Rebuilding Lives

Smiles Restored...Plan Moves On

Having achieved its goal of restoring normal life in the Tsunami affected area, it is now time for Plan to move on. But before we do that, we ensure that the communities we leave behind are stronger and better prepared because of the lessons they have learnt.

In its last year of intervention in the Tsunami affected area, Plan and its partners focused extensively on building capacities of beneficiaries and preparing them to lead various developmental efforts. Linkages with ICDS and other financial institutions and systems were strengthened and various groups trained in requisite skills. Partner organisations have motivated the community towards insurance schemes, renewed fishing crafts and gears, shops and livestock and restored the community's confidence in its ability to direct the course of their life. The last project was housing and 872 houses were built for the Tsunami community this year.

Voices from the field

Plan had supported the reconstruction of homes destroyed by the Tsunami. The houses were designed based on inputs received from children on their dreams for their new houses.

"The new houses are excellent with big windows. We can sit on the terrace and see the clear blue sky and there is place to keep our books."

- Children's comments on their new permanent homes

Women from Nagapattinam village share their experience with Plan. Speaking about their new homes they say, "Cooking and cleaning are so much easier and the ventilation is quite good."

Empowering communities by providing them with skills to improve their lives is a gift that lasts longer than any material benefits.

"The material support provided by organisations will last for some time, and then we will forget it. But the technical support that we have received towards organic farming will last for ever and we will transfer these skills to our children. It will have a long lasting effect."

- A farmer who benefited from the reclamation project in organic farming methods

Household Economic and Social Security

For a child, security and protection begin at home. Plan, as a child rights based organisation, recognises that Household Economic and Social Security (HESS) is required for proper upbringing and development of children. Unfortunately, the absence of economic and social security amongst impoverished families leads to denial of various child rights, thereby propagating a cyclic pattern of lack and denial.

Plan India's focus areas in HESS include:

Vocational Training: Plan and its partners will seek to bridge the demand for secure livelihood amongst young girls and boys by making available opportunities of vocational training. This will not only improve the economic security of households but also impart youth with necessary skills, social acceptance and security.

Micro Insurance of Health: With an aim to enable the community to mitigate the health risks and associated financial burden, self insurance for health was conceived in the year 2003. PREM-Plan Orissa was the pioneer among Plan's partners to commence a community owned, community managed health insurance program. The objective was to provide access to health care to the members by creating a pool of small contributions generated by community members. Plan India agreed to provide matching grant to the members' contribution for five years.

The benefit in the form of primary (medication, treatment for minor diseases) and secondary (reimbursement of hospitalisation expenses) health care was pegged to each member of the program. The concept of self insurance was liked by many of Plan's partners in India and replicated with required modification in different part of the country. Nearly 200,000 beneficiaries are getting support for health risk mitigation under this program.

Natural Resource Management: The agrarian economy of about 70% of rural households is intimately connected to the village natural resource base – its forests, grazing lands, and water resources. Households' ability to make a living from agricultural income depends, in large part, on the amount of water available for irrigation. Similarly, the availability of fodder on village grazing lands affects the income from livestock rearing. Even as household incomes improve, households will continue to draw on natural resources to earn a living irrespective of economic status of household. Most of Plan's partners work for promotion & better management of natural resources. Efforts are being made towards prevention of soil erosion, water-shed development & management, agro-forestry development, eco-friendly agriculture promotion etc. Importance is given to long term and sustainable use of natural resources without compromising the needs of future generations and without disturbing the status of other resources.

Support Changes

Lives

The growing number of supporters has enabled Plan to extend its reach to an ever increasing number of children. Plan's child-centred community development approach ensures that sponsors are in effect supporting not just one child, but entire communities and helping them become sustainable. 2007 saw a significant increase in Plan supporters with many corporate houses and individuals coming forward to support projects for children.

Corporate Partnership

Carlson Hotels Worldwide extended its support to us by donating part of its guest check out billing proceeds for development initiatives. The partnership involves 17 properties of Radisson Hotels & Resorts and Country Inns & Suites by Carlson properties of the Carlson group in India.

HDFC's support for the special unit for children with disability in Badarpur is enabling facilities and services for special children.

Individuals

2007 saw Plan consolidate its individual acquisition program through telecalling, a face to face campaign, direct mailing, and net enabled support.

Support in Kind

Radisson Hotel hosted the Press Conference to launch "Gandhi My Father" and all the expenses were borne by the hotel.

Chef & Child – An annual event done by Indian Culinary Forum to support children. This year the forum had chosen Plan as one of the beneficiaries and has promised continued support in the coming years.

Vodafone Marathon – Nivio and LG signed up for the corporate challenge for this year's marathon in Delhi and the proceeds will be used to fight trafficking.

Media Tie-up – Radio Mirchi and Exchange4media provided support to Plan India's Anti Child Labour Campaign. Radio Mirchi ran a radio campaign across NCR, while Exchange4media placed free advertisements and provided banner space at their web portal.

Support from Plan's Goodwill Ambassador

Anil Kapoor, Plan's goodwill ambassador and noted film actor brought hopes to thousands of children affected by the J&K earthquake as he dedicated his film "Gandhi My Father" to Plan India and the children in its communities. He also came forward to spend time with children, bringing with him Akshay Khanna, the movie's star, much to the children's delight. Supporting him was eminent painter Satish Gujral who created a painting inspired by the film and donated the proceeds for school reconstruction in Uri, Jammu and Kashmir.

Support Changes Lives

Branding Plan through Cards4u

Plan continued its Anti-child Labour Day campaign initiated in 2006 into 2007. Postcards on child labour were available for picking at 265 outlets (including restaurants and coffee shops) in New Delhi, Mumbai and Pune through a tie-up with Cards4u. A radio campaign and internet presence were also an integral part of the initiative.

Plan in Media

Plan India generated extensive media coverage throughout the year resulting in increased awareness about Plan and children's issues.

In the month of October, a journalist from The Times of India visited the program area, Nizamabad, Samskar - Plan PU and met the children who were part of "Chinnari Doctors" (Little Doctors) in the village. The article was published in the Sunday Times and appeared in all editions of TOI.

In the month of April, CAB (Children Advisory Board) members met the Editor of Education Times, Times of India, and shared their role and activities done so far.
